SAMPLE BOULDER COUNTY VOTER

EDUCATION AND OUTREACH INITIATIVE

Introducing the new Boulder County eSlate™ Electronic Voting System to the Boulder County community will require a coordinated program of community outreach that recognizes the County's demographics and cultural diversity. The outreach program must be inclusive, seeking to deliver information about the new voting system and the importance of participating in the electoral process to all eligible voters in Boulder County. The program must assure that no one is left uninformed because the program failed to reach out to a particular segment of voters. The program must take into consideration race, ethnicity, age, gender, religion, lifestyle, socio-economic status, place of residence within the county, educational attainment, party affiliation or non-affiliation, or any other discriminator.

Consider the following facts about the population of Boulder County:

- As of the 2000 census, Boulder County has grown to a population of 291,288, making it the 6th largest county in Colorado and the 204th largest in the United States.
- 10.5 % of Boulder County's population is of Hispanic or Latin origin; 3.1% is Asian; 0.9 % is Black or African-American; and .6% is made up of American Indian and Alaska Native persons.
- 7.8% are over the age of 65.
- 11.0 % of residents aged 21 to 64 report having a mobility or self-care limitation, and 36.9% of residents over the age of 65 also report a disability of some nature.
- 13.6 % of residents say they speak a language other than English at home, with almost half of that group reporting that they "do not speak English very well."
- 7.2 % of adults over the age of 25 have less than a high school degree; almost half of this group did not complete education beyond 9th grade.
- 35.3 % of households are renter occupied.
- There are 16 cities in Boulder County according to NACo.

Each of these facts has implications for the way Boulder County election officials must reach out to the community and manage Boulder County elections and, in many cases, may affect the way the citizens approach the electoral process.

At the same time, the outreach effort must be effectively coordinated with other community education efforts, such as get-out-the-vote and poll worker recruitment, in order to minimize confusion and inefficiency.

Effectively executed, we believe that the introduction of the new voting system can contribute to a renewed enthusiasm in the democratic process and an increase in voter participation. Therefore, Hart InterCivic is proposing that the Boulder County Clerk & Recorder's Office launch an ongoing program of community outreach and education. In order to support this program, Hart InterCivic has engaged the services of GBSM, a prestigious public affairs/communications firm based in Denver with experience in broad-based community outreach programs. For more than 15 years, GBSM has been involved in many of the region's most important projects, including the opening of Denver International Airport for United Airlines, the extension of E-470 from Southeast Denver to D.I.A., the siting of Coors Field and the community input process surrounding future uses of Boulder's Barker Reservoir. The GBSM team includes men and women with extensive experience in the media, politics, political campaigns and community outreach in both Boulder and the greater metropolitan area. With the addition of GBSM, Hart InterCivic's voter education team has extensive expertise in marketing, public relations, government affairs and community relations. The team also has significant experience in implementing customized voter education and outreach programs of varying sizes for eSlate customers throughout the United States.

All professional fees for the Boulder County Voter Education and Outreach Initiative are included under the Voter Education line item in Hart InterCivic's proposal to Boulder County. All costs associated with any production, printing, advertising, video replication, Web site hosting, toll-free voter hotline set-up and maintenance charges, postage and related costs will be the responsibility of Boulder County.

The following activities will be considered as part of the Boulder County Voter Education and Outreach Initiative:

1. COMPLETE A COMMUNITY VOTER EDUCATION ASSESSMENT

Immediately upon contract execution, the Hart InterCivic team will meet with Boulder County election officials to review the County's history of efforts to educate voters on election matters. A sample assessment form used to guide the initial data gathering is provided at the end of this section. The results of the data collection will be analyzed and a comprehensive voter education program developed.

2. The Boulder County Voter Education and Outreach Initiative Partner Program

The Boulder County Voter Education and Outreach Initiative will partner with media organizations, businesses and community organizations that agree to promote voter education activities, Web site, etc. Of particular importance are media organizations that can play a key role in periodically promoting the Web site, Boulder County Voter Education and Outreach Initiative events, feature stories and public service announcements (PSAs). A partial list of potential media partners is included at the end of this section.

3. The Boulder County Voter Education and Outreach Initiative Community Outreach Advisory Panel

Support from all segments of Boulder County will be critical to this campaign and will be developed through the establishment of an Boulder County Voter Education Community Advisory Panel. The Panel will consist of community leaders drawn from major organizations that represent various segments of the community and appointed by the Boulder County Clerk & Recorder. The Panel will meet intermittently to guide the County's outreach efforts, and members will be asked to champion voting initiatives in their respective organizations and among their constituents. A partial list of organizations that might serve as a source of members for the advisory panel is included at the end of this section.

4. The Boulder County Voter Education and Outreach Initiative Speakers' Bureau

Members of the Community Outreach Advisory Council, volunteers from community organizations, representatives of the County Clerk & Recorder's Office and other County offices, and other volunteers can form the nucleus of a Voter Education speakers' bureau. The Boulder County Voter Education and Outreach Initiative will actively solicit opportunities to appear before community organizations and deliver key messages. Each speakers' bureau volunteer will be trained to operate the new equipment and be prepared to demonstrate it at community presentations.

Speaking to seniors' organizations will be of particular importance, as senior citizens vote in very high numbers and are more likely than other demographics to be wary of new technology. Past speakers' bureau experience has found that organizations—such as the Lions Club and Rotary—located in senior communities are often eager for speakers. Cooperative efforts with local hospitals, which have existing senior outreach programs, are another method for reaching out to the community.

5. Voter Education Materials

Basic collateral material will be required, including a “how to” brochure that describes the new system, a standard poster or posters, letters/inserts for direct mail, and a special addition to Boulder County's current election web site. A professional quality copy of Hart InterCivic's “How to Vote” video will also be provided to Boulder County.

Speakers' bureau volunteers can distribute brochures and posters after public presentations and volunteers can distribute brochures at presentation locations. Posters can also be used at early voting polling locations. The new Web area will serve as a resource for citizens looking for information on where, when, and how to vote on the eSlate. The direct mail pieces can be distributed to community and business leaders, and will serve as an additional resource for speakers' bureau volunteers. The video can be used at community presentations, for mailing to community organizations and possible use at early voting polling places.

6. Employer Partnerships

An efficient way to reach a large number and a wide variety of the Boulder County population will be to partner with the largest employers in the Boulder County area. For example, University of Colorado, IBM Corp., Boulder Valley School District, Sun Microsystems, Storage Technology, Level 3 Communications, Boulder Community Hospital, EDS, Ball Corp., Longmont Foods, and many others, including Boulder County itself, are also potential venues for demonstrations, and can be approached about distributing information to employees. The Boulder County Voter Education and Outreach Initiative will provide informational materials, posters, and other support information.

7. The Boulder County Voter Education and Outreach Initiative Website

The Web site will be launched at the same time the Boulder County Voter Education and Outreach Initiative is announced. The Web site will include voter registration information, details about upcoming elections and illustrations and demonstrations of how to use the new equipment. Links to the Voter Education and Outreach Initiative Web site can also be placed on related Web sites, including Boulder County's homepage, Web sites of other local political subdivisions and employers, the Web sites of our media partners and the sites for chambers of commerce and civic organizations.

8. Boulder Voter Hotline

We will set up a toll-free number that residents can call to obtain more information on the system and how it will be used. Information provided on the hotline will include general information and upcoming events at which they can learn more and see the system demonstrated.

9. The Boulder County Voter Education and Outreach Initiative Roadshow

The Voter Education roadshow will include a series of appearances throughout the community — at community centers, senior centers, malls and shopping centers, libraries and other public areas — to take place prior to the election. Each road show event can create an opportunity for promotion by The Boulder County Voter Education and Outreach Initiative partners. At certain locations, such as libraries and community centers, permanent displays can also be established.

10. The Boulder County Voter Education and OUTREACH INITIATIVE Mailing

Direct mail is the perfect medium for explaining detailed information or instructions because it offers direct communication with a targeted audience. The Hart InterCivic team will actively contact local utilities to solicit opportunities for inserting voter education materials in customer mailings. Depending on resources available, direct mail programs from the County Clerk & Recorder's Office will also be considered.

11. Special Activities

Educating the public in open and fun atmospheres lends itself to communicating with a variety of audiences. It also removes the mystery and intimidation some citizens feel about the voting process. Such events are a part of the Boulder County culture, and any important, visible public initiative cannot afford to overlook these opportunities. Participation should be planned around specific events with great significance in the community. For example, we will target such events as the Kinetic Conveyance, the Boulder Boulder and summer concerts at Chautauqua. Such events would provide an opportunity to introduce residents to the new voting machine.

11.1 Kids Vote Days

Hart InterCivic has conducted special programs in schools in Colorado, Texas and Ohio. Such events are excellent media opportunities, and demonstrating the ease with which youth (including Kindergartners) can use the system can influence adult comfort. Working in conjunction with schools, the Boulder County Voter Education and Outreach Initiative will conduct voting sessions in selected schools throughout the County.

11.2 An Aggressive “Forward-This” Friend-to-Friend Email Campaign

Email is the fastest and most convenient method of communication for many Boulder County residents. A “viral” email campaign using requests to forward pre-developed, informative messages about electronic voting would be utilized.

12. Media Outreach and Advertising

The media offer one of the most effective delivery systems for speaking to the public in a quick and dynamic fashion. The following media measures will be taken to introduce The Boulder County Voter Education and Outreach Initiative to the public:

12.1 Media Partners

The Boulder County Voter Education and Outreach Initiative will work with several media partners in Boulder County to get the message out simply and repeatedly. Print media will be asked to sponsor a special media insert that will include instructions on how to use the new e-voting machines and voting information such as poll locations and voting times. Broadcast media will be asked to sponsor public service announcements (PSAs).

12.2 Public Service Announcements

A Boulder County Voter Education and Outreach Initiative broadcast partner will be solicited to produce the PSAs and air the announcements at select times leading up to Election Day.

12.3 Media Kits

Media kits will be developed that will include basic information on the voting machines and the significance of participating in the voting process. The kits will be distributed to all local media before interviews and special events.

12.4 Editorial Coverage and Contributed Articles

The editorial section of the daily newspaper offers a great opportunity to inform and educate the public. Meetings will be scheduled with representatives of the County Clerk & Recorder's Office and local editors to inform them about the importance of electronic voting to Boulder County voters and to encourage editorial coverage. In addition, op-editorials will be developed and submitted to local media.

12.5 Media Appearances

The final chapter of the media blitz will take place the week prior to the beginning of the first use of the system. TV and radio appearances will be scheduled intermittently for The Boulder County Voter Education and Education Initiative spokespersons at all available local stations as a final reminder to the public of the significance in getting out to vote on Election Day.

12.6 Partial List of Boulder County Media and Gateway Organizations

This list of organizations is intended to provide a partial directory representing the type of organizations whose support would assist the Boulder County Voter Education and Outreach Initiative, and from whom The Boulder County Voter Education and Outreach Initiative Community Outreach Advisory members can be selected.
